No Snap Judgment

It is immediately evident in the report on the Potsdam conference that there is to be no snap judgment on the complex issues discussed. In effect, the Big Three—President Truman, Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Attlee—laid down broad principles and turned over their specific application to a Little Five.

The Little Five is to be composed of the foreign ministers of the three major powers and the ministers of France and China. That will mean James F. Byrnes for the United States. Obviously, this council will act in accordance with principles agreed on at Potsdam, but its operation will relieve the heads of governments and of nations of the arduous duty entailed in settling the particular problems of peace-making. It may be expected that the council, which is to begin its work in London Sept. 1, will be in continuous session for many months.

This is a new technique in peace-making. It fits into the pattern of world security by cooperative action. If it does its work wisely and well, the United Nations organization, charged with responsibility for keeping peace in the years to come, will have a workable and equitable peace to keep. If it does its work badly, the peace-keeping organization will wind up in futility. In the deliberations at Potsdam and in the policies agreed on, the fate of the world in our time and our children's time has been decided, insofar as mere men can decide matters so momentous that they defy comprehension.

Perhaps the point of greatest immediate importance in the arrangement is the dispersal of personal responsibility for international decisions. The Potsdam conference itself was a conference of many minds. The experts and consultants who will be called on to work in the five-nation council at London will be even more numerous. It has been recognized that there is no need for haste, but much need for thoroughness. President Truman's personal report will amplify the official report on Potsdam, but Mr. Truman as one of the conferees already has created confidence by his part in a decision to make haste slowly in matters that deserve deliberation.

Science and The Farmer

It has not been so many years since the average dirt farmer had, at most, a mild tolerance for the scientists who tried to tell him new ways of growing things but all this has changed. The college-trained agricultural expert is looked upon as a friend whose advice is sought on many problems and the professors in their laboratories are being sought as the leaders in new farming methods.

Breaking down of world barriers has brought new problems which the farmer cannot solve without help. Already half a dozen disastrous insect pests have invaded from other lands and non-stop airplane flights from remote places carry the constant threat that others will arrive. Best barrier against these menaces are the scientists who disinfest arriving planes with their spray guns.

Patient men with microscopes and test tubes have developed weapons and treatment for combatting most of these menaces. In some cases they have saved farmers from ruin. They are now working harder than ever and new triumphs are being added each year.

They have discovered control for most insect pests, they have developed varieties resistant to blight and disease and after the war they will release chemicals which promise miracles.

The cooperation of the farmers, without which any general campaign for more and better crops must fail, is shown by the rapidly increasing use of the federal and state agricultural services which, within our generation, have become the bulwark of the nation's food supply.

Keep The Lid On Spending

Economic fate of millions of American families will depend on how well they are able to keep the lid on their spending when restrictions caused by shortages and regulations are removed.

Several surveys agree that most war workers have saved a part of their big earnings but the average family reports that it could not operate for more than 26 weeks on the money put aside from the fat pay envelopes.

It is possible to predict with reasonable accuracy what is going to happen after V-J day. In fact, it is starting to happen now. Industrial employment will drop sharply during reconversion and millions of workers will have a temporary layoff during which they must draw on their savings to supplement their state unemployment benefits.

Operations will then resume but in most cases it will be without the overtime which counted so much in swelling the wartime pay envelope.

At the same time consumer goods for which the public has been waiting will arrive on the market, bringing a strong temptation to draw on the savings for things which are wanted and, in many cases, needed.

Most experts agree that a season of prosperity will follow the reconversion. Brought down to its most simple form, the situation calls for some careful family budgeting, estimating how long the probable layoff will last and how the family can finance itself until full production again brings the pay envelope up to normal.

Prologue To A Career

Thousands of young Americans are at one of the most important crossroads of their lives as they plan to enter college this fall. It happens that most of them are girls for the armed services have delayed the decision for most of the young men.

The time has come when many of them will decide the work for which they expect to prepare themselves and it is an occasion for serious study rather than following a whim and selecting a career for which seems merely exciting or interesting.

Too many have found after spending four years in college that they have been preparing for work for which they are not suited, work which they don't like, or fields in which the opportunity for employment is limited.

Money, as has been said so often, so trivially and so truthfully, isn't everything but a sound economic future is one of the reasons for college.

As an example, each year finds more students taking journalism than the newspapers of the country can employ. On the other hand, libraries are crying for trained workers and the school systems of the country are understaffed because too few have trained as teachers.

Fortunately, the schools recognize this situation and afford opportunity for changing courses. The wise student will listen to the counsel of teachers, will seek and welcome the advice of qualified friends and will make his own investigation as to the prospects for a career before becoming committed too irrevocably to the course of study which will shape the course of a lifetime.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, August 5.

SUNDAY'S horoscope sustains conventional sabbath routine, with all interests and purposes moving serenely along in customary grooves. However, a serious note pervades the realm of home, health and ecclesiastical vocations, calling for proper consideration and perhaps a degree of fortitude and patience, as well as practical ministration.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of rather routine progress and prosperity in proportion to effort and judgment to forward cherished objectives. With fair endeavor and moderate support of superiors and those in authority, there may be fair rewards. But there is need for fortitude, consideration and constructive attitudes to matters of health, home and work, as depressions or limitations might slow down these.

A child born on this day will be endowed with fair abilities and skills, with sufficient force to hold its own, despite some slowing down in matters concerning health, home interests or perhaps employment.

For Monday, August 6.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast indicates a moving forward on accepted and already established schedules, with petty annoyances, setbacks, disagreements or misunderstandings. But such trivial adverse situations will not lessen seriously the trend to progress, production, steady finances or the security of personal popularity, prestige and happiness. Seek friendships.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of possibly maintaining the status quo, with little new or outside-established routines. This against trifling disagreements, possibly with speech or writings, documents or traveling, with erratic or impulsive words and deeds responsible. Personal popularity, home festivities or sentimental attractions or professional prestige may not be interfered with.

A child born on this day will enjoy a life of fair prosperity and progress, with happy friendships, professional contacts and enjoyable home and romantic affiliations.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Headaches From Eye Disorders

BY HERMAN N. BUNDSEN, M.D.

THOSE who have frequent headaches often get into the habit of taking some pain-relieving drug, and, once the pain is gone, they are prone to neglect the important procedure of having a complete study made to determine the cause of the headache.

Among the causes of headache are disturbances of the eyes. One eye disorder which produces headaches is known as acute glaucoma. This is a condition in which the pressure of the fluid within the eyeball is increased. In this disorder, there is severe pain in the eye as well as in the head.

Sudden Blurring

The condition, as a rule, comes on suddenly with blurring of the eyesight, widening of the pupil or opening in the eye and clouding of the front part of the eyeball or cornea. The headache usually is located in the area above the eye and is often worse at night. As soon as the pressure within the eyeball is relieved, the headache disappears.

A second eye disorder producing headache is iritis or inflammation of the colored part of the eye. In this disorder the eye is red, the pupil or opening in the eye is smaller than normal, while the iris or colored portion of the eye is discolored. The eyesight is blurred and there is pain which passes upward into the forehead and temple of the affected side. The pain in this condition is also worse at night. This disorder is treated by using a drug known as atropine, which completely puts the eye at rest. The pain is usually relieved as the condition disappears.

A third eye disorder producing head pains is known as retrobulber (neuritis). This is not a common condition and usually involves only one eye. In it there is loss of eyesight and pain in the eyeball, which is made worse by movement of the eye. The headache occurs on the side on which the affected eye is located.

Herpes zoster or shingles is a skin disorder which produces a rash made up of blisters, along the course of a nerve. The shingles may affect the eye and the skin area above the eye. This disorder, known as herpes zoster, ophthalmicus, usually begins with a severe pain on one side of the face and head.

In acute infections of the eyelids, pain in the head often appears. When the eyesight is not normal, that is, when a person is nearsighted, farsighted, or has astigmatism, eye strain results. If this eye strain is allowed to continue, severe headaches are produced. When the eye strain is overcome by the wearing of properly fitting glasses, the headache disappears.

Thus it may seem that when headaches are present, a thorough study of the eyes is always a part of the procedure in determining what is causing the headaches.

Dale Ritchie Hurls Second No-Hitter Against Sinclairs

Runs Streak To 14 Hitless Frames Over 2nd Round's Champs As Mullins Wins 5-3

Dale Ritchie is definitely "on the beam" once more bound and determined to lead his Salem China softball outfit to the third round championship.

Proof was offered convincingly last night at Centennial park when the Pottery speed artist hurled his second no-hit game of the season, and to make it even more convincing, he did it against the Sinclair Oils, who only the day before captured the second round title by topping Mullins.

Consistent Mullins, using Marty Pauline on the mound for the first time since last season, chalked up a 5-3 victory in the other fray to get off to their usual good start in the final round.

Ritchie's no-hitter, his second and the second so far this year in the loop, was near perfect. It was spoiled from the first, however, as Bob Humberger, the first Oiler at the plate, walked. Buck Ritchie also put in a mild war when he made first base on an error. It was the second no-hitter for Ritchie against the Oils in two games he has faced them.

The China club, gradually regaining the power it displayed in 1944, collected a slim four hits from the offering of Mutt Schaeffer.

The Youth Center walloped the Toppers 11-2 at Centennial park last night as the Columbians faced the Nazarenes 7-1 in Class B play.

The Columbians tallied their seven runs on but four hits and a flurry of walks by Pitcher Mitchell of the Nazarene outfit.

But three of those four bingles came in one frame—the third—to make the three run margin. Schaeffer also walked Left Fielder Jeffries and Manager Ritchie's error helped things somewhat.

Schaeffer hurls well. Schaeffer walked four and struck out one while Ritchie fanned two less than a dozen and walked only Humberger in the first.

Marty Pauline was blessed with a potent group of hitters on his side last night as the Factory men blasted out 10 safeties from the offerings of Kenny Brudery to chalk up five runs.

Francis Lanney, playing right field, Paul Stratton and Walt Brian each tagged two for three to pace the winners at the plate.

Pauline fanned two batters and walked two. Brudery issued a single walk and whiffed three Mullins men.

Demings trailed all the way but made a desperate attempt at a rally in the last of the final frame, when three runs crossed the plate.

An error, three hits and a walk counted for the three markers.

Jim Smith's homer in the second frame with an aboard made the margin for Mullins in the beginning and a walk and three hits in the fifth completed the winners' total.

The games last night marked the beginning of the third round. Monday the Eagles meet Leontia and the News and Recreation are slated to settle a 1-1 standing in play this year.

The War Today

himself "emperor," his domain consisting of the Japanese home islands under strict foreign control—an abasement which might make death preferable for him and many another Japanese. They can see the end of the industrialization which made them "superior" in the Orient.

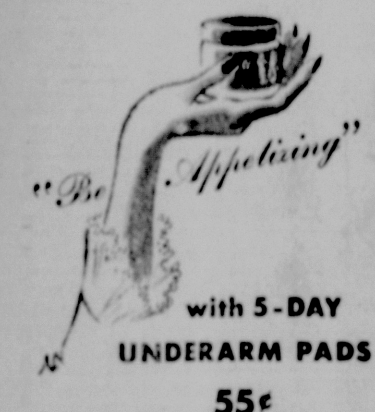

Above all, they can see the advance of an enemy who is less "mad" than inexorable, a conqueror who does not raving, but who has grimly set jaws about the business in hand.

And they must know that the Sino-British-American ultimatum would not have been delivered from Potsdam during the conference with Stalin unless the situation had been thoroughly gone over with him; and that there remained between him and China no bone of contention which was not subject to amicable negotiation.

So does Japanese hope for a Russo-Chinese situation which could endanger Allied unity, as well as her hope for anything except a relentless peace.

Falls are the leading cause of fatal accidents in the United States, being responsible for more than 25,000 deaths in 1943.

Term "Psychoneurosis" Is Dropped By Army

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—The term "psychoneurosis" has been dropped by the Army Medical Corps because "it is unfair to stigmatize a man with a term that is misused generally by civilians," Kennedy General Hospital authorities report.

"The term stamps a man, gives the idea that he is unfit to go back to civilian life," said Capt. Bernard Klauber, Kennedy psychiatrist.

The term does not mean that a man is mentally unbalanced or mentally deficient, Klauber explained. It was applied to men who were unsuited for military service because of personality deviations—there were certain features of Army life under which they could not stand up.

Klauber revealed that homesickness caused one-third of the Army's mental cases.

"The real evil that has arisen from the word psychoneurosis is the morbid mental reaction of the affected soldier," Klauber said. "This soldier comes back into civilian life with a label. He reacts in various nervous ways and is prevented from regaining his self-confidence."

Farm Prosperity Cue Is Given By Anderson

STILLWATER, Okla., Aug. 4.—Prosperity on the farm depends primarily on purchasing power in the city, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson said today, and therefore full employment will go a long way toward solving the farmer's postwar problems.

Anderson said there would be "small need to worry about agricultural abundance outrunning demand in the postwar period" if employment, a free flow of world trade and a stable price level could be maintained.

The secretary made the statements in an address at the annual Farm and Home week program on the Oklahoma A. & M. college campus.

He said the "critical time for farmers may not come for a year or two after the war in the Pacific if it ends soon" but that "the years to follow will be critical if we fail to plan now to deal with the problems of those years."
